

Thaddeus is threatened by forces both natural and Super-natural... can he survive?

The beekeeper's son has his life's plans in front of him. The Master Sorcerer, Silvestrus, paints a palette of wonder, promising the boy's parents he will learn an honorable trade and become his Apprentice.

It is an ideal opportunity for the young boy. But, it is an opportunity that is beset by beasts, brigands, a Daemon, a black-haired Courtesan, the King of the Moths, tree fiends, ghost legions and Greensward Aelvae, not to mention an attempt on his life by the Master Assassin of the Cin.

- Can Thaddeus' aged Master protect him from a failed Sorceress?
- Can the Apprentice fully trust a Master who conceals the fact that he is over a thousand years old?
- Can Thaddeus persuade the long-dead Ghosts of the Lost Legion to fight for him?
- Can Thaddeus trust the Street Thief who stole his father's gold?
- Can the Prophecy make demands for the sacrifice of the Earth?
- Can the most powerful form of Sorcery save Mankind?
